

Honourable Sir Austin de Preuss,

I must be brief. The situation is critical. The enemy is trying to destroy the language of our ancestors. I have summoned all the most brave and loyal knights of the Kingdom to organize the defence of our idiom.

The gathering will be held at the round table next to the chapel of Mountsea, this Thursday, after the first two hours of battle.

The King conjures you to keep this secret and to come alone. I trust in you.

King Arthur
